

Author guide: reusing content from Taylor & Francis journals

Use this guide to help you understand how to re-use your complete article, or individual parts of your work (such as table, figures, supplementary materials or text).

I am the author and I want to...	Can I use my article in this way without seeking permission?	I need to...
Share the e-print of my published article	Yes	Use your networks to share your 50 free e-prints. You will receive a link from us, which you can email, tweet, post, and share with your contacts. Our authors tell us this is an excellent way to highlight their published article. Other ideas to promote your article .
Print copies for non-commercial use in a lecture or classroom	Yes (if the author is taking the course)	Include a link to the Version of Record , using "This is an Accepted Manuscript of an article published by Taylor & Francis in [JOURNAL TITLE] on [date of publication], available online: http://www.tandfonline.com/[Article DOI]."
Post my Accepted Manuscript (the version that has been through peer review and been accepted by a journal editor; sometimes called a post-print) on my departmental or personal website after publication	Yes	Include a link to the Version of Record , using "This is an Accepted Manuscript of an article published by Taylor & Francis in [JOURNAL TITLE] on [date of publication], available online: http://www.tandfonline.com/[Article DOI]."
Post my Accepted Manuscript (the version that has been through peer review and been accepted by a journal editor; sometimes called a post-print) on institutional repositories or academic social networks (e.g. Academia.edu, ResearchGate, Mendeley, etc.) after publication	Yes (embargo periods apply ; there is no embargo period if you have chosen to publish Gold open access)	Include a link to the Version of Record , using "This is an Accepted Manuscript of an article published by Taylor & Francis in [JOURNAL TITLE] on [date of publication], available online: http://www.tandfonline.com/[Article DOI]."

Taylor & Francis Group
an informa business

I am the author and I want to...	Can I use my article in this way without seeking permission?	I need to...
Use my article internally within my institution or company	Yes (if it is the author[s]' institution or company)	Include a link to the Version of Record , using "This is an Accepted Manuscript of an article published by Taylor & Francis in [JOURNAL TITLE] on [date of publication], available online: http://www.tandfonline.com/[Article DOI] ."
Present my article at a meeting or conference	Yes	This <presentation> is derived in part from an article published in [JOURNAL TITLE] on [date of publication], available online: http://www.tandfonline.com/[Article DOI] .
Use my article in personal compilations	Yes	Include the acknowledgement: This <chapter or book> is derived in part from an article published in [JOURNAL TITLE] on [date of publication], available online: http://www.tandfonline.com/[Article DOI] .
Expand it into a book length form	Yes	Include the acknowledgement: This <chapter or book> is derived, in part, from an article published in [JOURNAL TITLE] on [date of publication], available online: http://www.tandfonline.com/[Article DOI] .
Re-use my article in a book chapter or edited collection on a commercial basis	No	Please email permissionrequest@tandf.co.uk for assistance
I can't see my intended use	No	Please email permissionrequest@tandf.co.uk for assistance

